Regulations prohibiting entry, departure of ships and aircraft enforced

Ships asked to report attacks

Master mariners are requested by the Director of Marine to report to the Duty Officer, Port Control, on arrival if their ships are attacked en route to Hong Kong.

The circular reads: "Has your vessel been attacked whilst en route to Hong Kong? If so, please report to the Duty Officer, Port Control."

Only two ocean-going ships entered port yesterday from foreign ports—the Tjiljalangka from Singapore and the Talleysrand from Manila. The skipper did not mention any incident.

According to the local agents, both vessels made uneventful trips to Hong Kong, except for strong monsoon gales, which battered the ships.

The coaster Matilda reached port from Amoy later in the afternoon. The China Steamship Company, operating the 1,000-ton freighters, said their vessel had a smooth voyage from the Chinese port.

Opium smokers sentenced

Five opium smokers, one of whom was shot while attempting to escape from custody, received prison terms and fines from Mr. F. X. d'Almeida at Kowloon yesterday.

On charges of keeping an opium den, possession of pipes and smoking, Fung Kam-chuen received six months; Wong Kwong, three months for escaping from lawful custody, and smoking, while Lu Ping, was fined $80 or four weeks for attempting to escape and smoking. The two others, Leung Siu-po and Wan Tia, were respectively fined $30 and $50 or two weeks for smoking.

Inspector W. H. Summers on Thursday when the defendants were remanded for finger prints, told the Court that on Wednesday the attention of the Marine Police on patrol off Cha Kwo Ling was drawn to a hut on shore. Inspector Gooding and a seaman went ashore to investigate.

Accidentally shot

In the hut Inspector Gooding found six men smoking opium. He herded them to a corner while his assistant went for help. While he was guarding the men alone, defendant Wong Kwong made his escape and as Wong brushed by him through the back door, Inspector Gooding's revolver went off. The bullet after hitting a tin can ricocheted and hit Wong in the buttock. After leaving the hut, Wong made a report to the police of the village that he was accidentally shot while passing a house but under questioning he admitted of having escaped from custody.

Lu Ping also attempted to escape while he was being taken to the launch. Another man made good his escape.

Gold brought in by air passengers

A total of 43 gold bars weighing about 74 taels, were brought here from Taiphong by three Chinese passengers when they alighted from a Cathay Pacific Airways aircraft yesterday afternoon.

The gold bars were produced by the air travellers when Revenue Officers stationed at Kai Tak airport asked them whether they had anything to declare to the Customs.

The passengers were not in possession of any import permit for the gold bars, it is alleged.

The Governor-in-Council announced the immediate enforcement yesterday of Emergency Regulations prohibiting the entry and departure of any particular ship and aircraft. The Regulations were made last year.

As stated previously, the orders may be made at any time in the interests of defence, or of the preservation of public order, safety or health, or of the provision or maintenance of supplies and services essential to the life of the community.

The orders which are enforced now may be given in respect of any particular ship or aircraft or any class of ships or aircraft. Such ships or aircraft shall not enter or leave the Colony without permission from the Governor or his appointed deputies.

Such ships or aircraft may also be ordered to leave the Colony within a specific period. Officials acting on behalf of the Government may use such force as may be necessary to enforce the orders.

Any person who supplies fuel, victuals or necessities to a ship or aircraft or any class of ships or aircraft affected by the orders shall be guilty of an offence. They shall be liable to a fine of $5,000 and two years' imprisonment on summary conviction.

Confiscation

When offences against the Regulations have been committed the Magistrate may order the confiscation of any ship or aircraft involved in the offence.

However, before making such orders, the Magistrate shall give the persons concerned an opportunity of being heard. It shall be lawful for the Governor to use his discretion in giving effect to any claim for relief from such confiscation where such claim is established to his satisfaction on equitable, moral, or other grounds.

The defendants were arrested on Thursday night at 485, Queen's Road, West, third floor.

Asked whether the remaining two motor launches, which will be sent to Canton for immediate delivery, the official said that the launch was declined to elaborate on that point of the CMC fleet.

Rubber factory asked to work on part-time basis

The Fung Keong Rubber Manufactory, which suddenly stopped work on Wednesday and terminated the services of all their workers, have been asked by their workmen to resume work partially so that they may not be thrown out of employment completely.

The request was made through their union officials who brought the matter to the Commissioner of Labour for his intervention.

Due to the large number of workers involved—more than 1,000 men and women—the Hong Kong and Kowloon Federation of Free Trade Unions have also taken a hand in the matter, and they have formed an emergency committee to consider relief measures to tide them over the crisis.

The request of the workers is being considered by the Fung Keong management but no decision so far has been reached. It is understood.

All the men are due to be paid off this morning, according to the notice posted up by the management at the factory. The reason given by the management for the stoppage is complete lack of overseas orders on which their main business depends.

Their action, though drastic, was unavoidable in the circumstances, they said, especially as the present abnormal rise in cost of raw rubber will preclude any chance of fresh overseas orders for the time being.

Court Brevities

Two unlicensed hawkers faced Mr. J. Reynolds at Central yesterday on a charge of unlawful winding. The defendants Lau Ma and Lau Ying were charged with winding Leung Kam-tong Lee Yuen Street, East, on July 11. First defendant was represented by Mr. Y. H. Young and second defendant by Mr. A. J. Ayall.

Hearing of the case was adjourned until September 6 at 11.30 a.m.

For the illegal possession of a revolver and two rounds of ammunition, Chung Kung-hing, aged 32, unemployed, who was arrested near Sookun-poo on July 15, was committed to stand trial by Mr. James Wicks at Kowloon yesterday.

Detective Sub-Inspector E. P. Grace conducted the committal proceedings.

Fines ranging from $30 to $70 were imposed on 15 Chinese women by Mr. Hsiao-shing Lo at Central yesterday for importing gold without permit.

The gold taken from the women was ordered to be given back to them.

The women were arrested by Revenue officers when the ss. Kwong Tung arrived from Macao on Thursday.

FLOOD IN LUZON

Manila, August 11.—The death toll in the three-week flood in Luzon provinces increased to 10 as the rivers continued to spread out of control following steady rainfall.

Damage to food crops and property in five provinces to date has been estimated at 6,000,000 pesos (US$2,500,000).

Red Cross officials, who have been preliminary relief work, said flood conditions in Luzon had turned worse in the province. Emergency relief work has been under way for some time. A serious rain storm, as a result of the flood, is predicted for tomorrow.

Handbag snatcher sentenced

Pleading guilty to a charge of snatching a handbag from Mrs. L. H. Quile in Mody Road on Thursday, To Yu, 18-year-old unemployed, was given two months, six strokes of the cane and ordered to be expelled by Mr. R. W. S. Winter at Kowloon yesterday.

Inspector J. Orem stated that on Thursday evening, Mrs. Quile was walking along Mody Road when defendant snatched her handbag from behind. She raised an alarm which was heard by a Police Reserve Officer, Cheung Ki, who was passing by on board a bus in Nathan Road.

Cheung, who was not on duty at the time, got off the bus and caught defendant after a chase. He was highly commended by the Court for this act.

Another unemployed man, Ching San-chuen, received the same sentence for an attempted larceny of a handbag, containing $150, and various papers, from Mrs. J. B. Parker, of 175 Sai Yee Street.

Inspector Orem said that at 10 p.m. Mrs. Parker was returning home and found Ching lying at the entrance. She flashed her torchlight at him whereupon defendant got up and tried to snatch her bag.

Ching, who is a Northerner, told the Court that since he came to the Colony two months ago he had been selling his clothing to eat.

Two months' hard labour and expulsion from the Colony was the sentence given Li Fai, aged 25, on two charges of larceny.

Arrested on Thursday for stealing a saddlebag and a mirror from a car belonging to Tang Hing, defendant admitted that he had taken a pair of windscreen wipers from a car parked in Gasoline Road on August 3. The wipers belonged to H. E. Purvis.

PWD coolie gaoled on arms charge

Mr. Justice Gould, Senior Puisne Judge, yesterday sentenced to one and a half years hard labour a PWD coolie found guilty of keeping two automatic pistols without a licence.

Chau Ming, who was told by the Court that the maximum penalty was four to five years, discovered the weapons in a rat-trap basket on a hillside below Wongninchong Gap Road and subsequently passed them to another person.

The Judge told the prisoner that he took into account his passing sentence that he was satisfied Chau did not intend to use the pistols for criminal purposes.

The jury, composed of four men and three women, returned the verdict after a 10-minute recess.

The prosecutor was Mr. M. Heenan, Crown Counsel who was assisted by Detective Sub-Inspector J. W. Howlett. Chau, who was not legally represented, did not put up any defence yesterday. Upon his arrest, however, he admitted he had discovered the guns in the basket on the hillside in question.

The prosecution disclosed that the things were thrown at the spot concerned by a woman, Lam Chun, who had found the pistols in her own house at 186 Queen's Road East, top floor. The woman, who had come from Canton to live here in October last year together with her husband, was afraid of the consequences arising from keeping these, and decided to dispose of them.

The guns were eventually found in possession of another man, to whom the accused subsequently passed them.

Detective's assailant bound over

Telling defendant that the offence under which he was charged could not be assessed with a fine, but that he had either to imprison or release him, Mr. James Wicks at Kowloon yesterday chose the latter course.

He bound over David Hsiung, a Northern merchant, to the sum of $500 for two years for assaulting a detective police constable.

Inspector G. Willerton, prosecuting, told the Court that on Thursday evening DPC. 667 saw defendant standing with his hands in his pockets at the corner of Nga Tsin Wai and Lion Rock Roads, Kowloon City. The detective suspected him and went up to him. He identified himself and asked him to submit to a search, whereupon defendant refused and at the same time he was alleged to have struck the detective.

The detective, said Inspector Willerton, had to produce his fire arm to bring Hsiung under control. He added that defendant was fairly well-to-do and should have known better.

Defendant, pleading guilty to the charge, said that it was all due to misunderstanding as he came here only recently and had difficulty with Cantonese.

Mr. Wicks said the police in Hong Kong are bearing a very heavy burden in their attempt to protect the people from bandits and armed robbers, and several policemen have been shot and killed by doing so.

"I think it is a tribute to the police, particularly members of the detective branch, that the majority of the armed robbers had been brought to book. If the police are to be open attacked by the very people they are protecting, their work will be made more difficult."

BRITAIN PREPARES HER

Defence against the atom bomb

London, August 10.

In case of an atomic bomb explosion in the neighbourhood, the first thing to do, if you are alive, is to determine whether you or your clothing are radio-active.

The advice is given in a manual for civil defence workers published by the British government. It is pointed out that bombardment by neutrons and penetration by gamma rays cannot be felt, and if decontamination is delayed, effects may be serious.

The manual is a 60-page booklet of practical suggestions to more than 30,000 British men and women who learned about bombs in the Nazi blitz, and who are now expanding their technique to handle the atomic bomb. It is hoped to double the civil defence corps within a few months.

The blast of atomic bombs is more violent, but the world war methods of dealing with damage, fire and rescue are not expected to change essentially. But new to the defence corps is the more intricate and scientific measures to deal with radio-active contamination.

Little detecting instruments, with dials and pulsating needles, indicate whether one has been exposed excessively to the deadly radiation.

First essential, if there has been exposure, is to bathe, the manual advises. But care must be used in undressing. Clothing must be shaken as little as possible so as not to dislodge radio-active dust. Clothing is deposited in a bin for later treatment, decontamination if possible. Ordinary laundering or dry cleaning may do it, but in cases of heavy contamination it may be necessary to destroy clothing. Radio activity cannot be removed chemically. It might disappear with time, but the time may be anything from a few hours to several hundred years.

Running water

The contaminated person, says the book, must first be bathed with running water, the thought being that most of the contamination may be in dust or moisture particles on the skin.

Food and tobacco near an atomic blast must be suspect until the detection meter gives an all clear recording. Keeping food tightly covered does not protect against all forms of radiation, for some of the rays pass through a pickle jar as readily as if it were a wide-meshed screen.

These and a hundred other details are being taught the new defence corps by the veterans of the highly effective defence services which learned their business when London, Coventry and many other British communities were subjected to pitiless beatings from the air.

The new civil defence corps is working against a menace which is surrounded by many unknown factors. Only two atomic bombs have been dropped on populated areas, and data is incomplete as to just what happens when searing heat, blasts of immeasurable violence and deadly storms of radio-activity are combined.

Civil defence workers are challenged to be inventive and resourceful in the face of only partially understood dangers. The manual on what to do estimates that an atomic bomb dropped on an unprepared British city could kill 50,000 persons.

But the British positively reject any notion that there is no defence against an atomic bomb.

Now techniques

The defence corps attitude is that it's a super-bomb, but the volunteers in the new service would be able to save hundreds of thousands of lives by adopting certain new techniques in addition to those developed in World War II.

There is some feeling that the Home Office, which manages civil defence, is too matter-of-fact about atomic bombs, and that it over-simplifies defence needs. Several scientists have stated privately since the manual was published that the atomic bomb is something more than an extraordinarily strong bomb which in addition to tearing things apart infests an area with radioactive substances. To the three effects of a radio bomb explosion blast, heat and radio-activity—they add a fourth. It is, they contend, the psychological terror which would be induced by one or more devastating atomic blows. They fear that a population might be numbed into a state of defencelessness.

Some scientists also pointed out that the new bomb defences developed are based on the studies of atomic explosions at Nagasaki and Hiroshima five years ago. Since then, it is generally believed, atomic bombs at least six times more destructive have been developed, while the hydrogen bomb may become an even more deadly killer.

But the British official approach at the moment is to build a defence system on the known facts and to get on with the task without hysteresis.

Encouraging in the defence corps' study of Hiroshima data is the fact that ordinary Japanese shelters in the earth were on the whole an effective protection.

Shelter above ground, of metal or brick to give protection against bomb splinters of flying debris are believed to be unsuitable in the atomic age. Light shelters above the surface would be swept away within an area of several miles from an atomic blast, the defence corps manual stated.

Best security against great loss of life, it was suggested, is adequate notification by detection services that an attack is imminent. Atomic warfare, it said, would be deadly against persons caught in the open. The experience of Hiroshima, the manual added, was that any material offers some protection against radio-activity. The stone and brick walls of British houses would be a better shield than the flimsy structures of Oriental towns, while underground shelters, except possibly very close to the blast, would be a reasonably effective protection against blast, heat, and radio-activity.

Not much different

The civil defence worker of the atomic age will not look much different from the veterans of the blitz period.

Tightly woven fabrics are some protection against slight gamma ray diffusion, so denim overalls are a recommended uniform. The defence workers will carry a respirator, war, rubber gloves and gumboots or strong leather shoes. He will carry instruments for the detection of radio-activity.

A problem, it is foreseen, will be for defence workers to persuade persons not to enter areas contaminated by radio-activity. The danger cannot be seen, and the instruction has become general. It may be difficult to persuade citizens from eating contaminated food, smoking cigarettes which have been bombarded by neutrons, or wear clothing which, apparently in the best of order, is radioactive to a dangerous degree.

It is conceded that in an atomic war there are bound to be many surprises and defence techniques will have to be improved as knowledge increases.

"The complete defence can be provided against any weapon of war," the training manual states. "But just as it proved possible to devise means of mitigating the consequences of other forms of attack in the last war, so it is certain that means can be found for mitigating the consequences of atomic warfare." Associated Press.

Riots in Central India

Gwalior (Central India), August 10.

The authorities here have asked for a tear gas squad to be rushed from Delhi and police reinforcements from Agra have been summoned following disturbances in which the police today opened fire twice to disperse violent Hindu crowds in the heart of the city.

Earlier today bodies of two students who died in yesterday's police firing near the Secretariat were taken in procession by students and cremated on their college grounds.

A Madhyabharat State Government communiqué put the casualties in today's firing at 26 injured, including a police constable who was seriously hurt.

A communiqué said: "The situation arising out of yesterday's demonstration and the consequent firing by the police took a communal turn when some Moslem shops at Jayaji Chowk (a square in the centre of the city) were looted and burnt this morning."

"The office of the Provincial Congress Committee, was also raided this morning by a mob which tore down the national flag and damaged other property."

"Police had to resort to a lathi charge at a number of points and later on to firing on a defiant mob at Jayaji Chowk as a result of which 25 persons are reported to have received injuries, two of them seriously."

"A police constable has also been seriously injured."

"The bodies of two persons were taken away forcibly by students last night from the hospital."

"The military have been called out and a 30-hour curfew has been imposed."

A hospital check-up showed that one of the injured died there.—Reuter.

W. Germans do not want arms

While Russian Zone government seeks 'protection' from Moscow
DANGEROUS IMPLICATIONS

Strasbourg, August 10.

German representatives today gave the Council of Europe a polite but firm "No" to suggestions that Germany should be re-armed or that German soldiers should take part in European defence.

"Ask us for labour, ask us for industrial products," declared Herr Carlo Schmid, leader of the German Socialist Party to the 125-member assembly of 15 free European nations sitting in Strasbourg. "But do not ask us for German soldiers before the creation of a supra-national European Authority under whose orders a really European army could be created."

Baron Von Rechenberg, representing the German Free Democratic Party, briefly declared his agreement. "Our intention," he said, "is not to rebuild the fear of the German Reich with the help of its own army. What we want is first of all to integrate the German people in the European community."

"We have learned from our own history that Europe will not be built by domination but only by loyal co-operation among free men of goodwill." There were occasional short bursts of applause for Herr Schmid as he declared Germany's willingness to help in the peaceful rebuilding of Europe. But in references to the German army were for the most part received in attentive silence.

Mr. Winston Churchill, who has publicly declared in favour of German participation in European defence, was not present. "The Socialist Party for which I speak here refuses in the present state of European disorganisation to agree to any proposal for German rearmament," Herr Schmid went on.

"We are convinced that German rearmament would render the worst service to the peace and re-integration of Europe." Then, he added, "The day the first armed German division appeared between the Rhine and the Elbe, the Russians would have their best pretext if they wanted a war."

Talking generalities

Speakers in today's general debate, a British Labour Member of Parliament, Mr. Ronald MacKay, and a Swedish Liberal leader, M. Bertil Ohlin, called on the Assembly to stop talking generalities.

Mr. Winston Churchill's eagerly awaited speech, in which he had been expected to refer to the German rearmament issue, was postponed at the last minute today and is now timed for tomorrow morning.

He is expected to make a "modest speech" mainly on European defence.

"Dropping of incendiaries"

Meanwhile in Berlin, the East German Government announced that it will ask Russia to take measures to protect the Soviet zone from alleged dropping of incendiaries by U.S. planes.

Impressions of Indian delegation

London, August 10.

Giving his impressions of his tour of Continental countries, during which he studied Western Agriculture, Mr. I. V. Swaminathan, a member of the Indian delegation to the recent International Agricultural Conference in Brussels, said that scientific agriculture predominated in Europe with the use of modern tractors and chemical manures.

Although conditions in Europe and India varied, speaking as an agriculturist he felt that many of these methods could, and should, be adopted in India if the country was to prosper.

For example, the French were conducting an interesting five-year experiment into the cultivation of rice, adapting modern techniques to age-old Asian methods.

The soil resembled that of any South Indian rice-growing district and the difference in rainfall was made up by irrigation. India could learn a lot from similar European experiments. But if new methods were really to succeed, he would have to undertake hard hand work, revision of her outworn land tenure system so that the farmer might have a real interest in his land, he said.—Reuter.

Washington, August 10.

The State Department today denied a Chinese report from Hong Kong that the United States military mission in Formosa-China is planning to withdraw some 30,000 Chinese Nationalist troops from the island. The report, it was said, was based on no information about the report.—United Press.

The Government forwarded to Moscow a report by Minister of Interior Karl Steinhoff which claimed incendiaries were tossed on East German farm centres by American aircraft on two occasions last month.

Allegation withdrawn

Berlin, August 10. The official East German news agency, ADN, later withdrew the report that the East German Government was sending to Russia the results of an investigation into allegations that American planes dropped incendiary bombs in the Soviet Zone of Germany.

The report was withdrawn one hour after it was issued.—Reuter.

The U.S. Air Force Headquarters at Wiesbaden in West Germany has flatly denied American planes were involved in the alleged incidents, which followed a charge three months ago by Communist officials that American fliers had dropped Colorado beetles on East German potato fields.

The East German Government's appeal to Moscow for "protection" came on the heels of a hint by the Soviet Control Commission's official newspaper on Wednesday that a Russian air blockade of Berlin may be in the offing.

The newspaper published an interview with a Communist worker who demanded the Soviet Union bar American planes from flying over East Germany. Soviet zone propaganda chief, Gerhart Eisler, fugitive from U.S. prosecution, released the following resolution, which was adopted today by a session of the East German cabinet:

"The Government has received with indignation the report of Dr. Steinhoff, Minister of Interior, regarding dropping of incendiaries on the territory of the (East) German Democratic Republic. The Government is transmitting the report on the investigation to the Government of the USSR with a request for investigation of measures to protect the republic against such criminal attacks."

Serious view

Allied officials seriously viewed the obvious implications if Moscow undertakes to use Thursday's East German complaint for anything more than propaganda.

Any attempt by the Russians to block American planes from the three Allied air corridors between Berlin and West Germany would be a direct risk of world war.

During their 11-month land blockade of Berlin in 1948-49, the Russians avoided challenging American air rights. The Russians still participate fully in the four-power air safety centre maintained in Berlin to supervise East-West air traffic.

This centre controls all flights between here and West Germany. The Russians have complete reports on all operations of U.S. planes over the East zone and made no attempt here to substantiate the old Communist charge of American "potato bug bombing."

Communist authorities here have alleged the incendiaries were aimed at fields of ripened grain near the Elbe River town, Dessau, where U.S. and Soviet soldiers met in April, 1945.

The East German Government also sent Moscow a supplementary report by the Ministry of Interior citing 21 other "illegal flights by foreign planes into the Republic's territory" in the past three months.

According to Allied observers the threatening East German attitude, carefully nursed along by Soviet Control Commission officials, may mean Russia may hope to precipitate a new Berlin crisis to deter the United States from reinforcing the South Korean front.

Russia may also hope to frighten U.S. and British airmen from attempting unauthorized reconnaissance flights over the East German border territory where Soviet infantry and armoured divisions are strongly concentrated.—Reuter and Associated Press.

TRUMAN CONFIDENT ON KOREAN OUTCOME

Washington, August 10.

President Truman today expressed confidence in the outcome of the Korean war.

Commenting on criticism of General MacArthur's recent visit to the Chinese Nationalist leader, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, in Formosa, President Truman told his weekly press conference that he and General MacArthur were in perfect agreement, and that he was satisfied with what the general had done.

The President would not comment on details of the report made to him by his foreign affairs advisor, Mr. W. Averell Harriman, who recently visited Tokyo and talked with General MacArthur on the political situation in the Far East. The President was asked whether America was prepared to use her air force and ground troops as well as the Seventh Fleet to defend Taiwan if it were invaded by the Chinese Communists from the mainland. Mr. Truman answered that he could not answer any questions about that.

Wonderful job

The President told the reporters he thought that the British and American delegations at the United Nations Security Council were doing a "wonderful job" in the face of a Russian filibuster. He added that the more he thought of the Russian delegation, particularly those of Mr. Jacob Malik, the more he was convinced that they were doing a "wonderful job" in the face of a Russian filibuster. BEVIN RESIGNATION DENIED

London, August 10. The London "Star" claimed today that the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, is one of three British ministers who have offered their resignations to the Prime Minister.

A spokesman for both Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin denied the report.

The newspaper said Lord Addison, who leads the House of Lords, and Lord Hall, First Lord of the Admiralty, have also offered their resignations.

Lord Addison's private secretary said his chief has not made this offer, nor been asked to resign. Lord Hall could not immediately be reached for comment.

The "Star" also asserted that the war minister, Mr. John Strachey, is expected to be offered another job by Mr. Attlee. A War Office spokesman refused to comment on the report.—Associated Press.

Schuman and the sceptics

Strasbourg, August 10.

The French Foreign Minister, Mr. Robert Schuman, went before the 15-nation European Assembly today to "convince the sceptics" on his coal-steel pool plan.

Giving what he described as a purely factual account of the plan, Mr. Schuman said that the new authority to run the pool would be "the first example of a supra-national institution."

"As far as I am concerned personally, I accept the relinquishment of sovereign rights, not for its own sake but as a necessity as the only means we have at our disposal in order to overcome the national antagonism and narrow-mindedness that are killing us."

In a speech which lasted 35 minutes, Mr. Schuman made no reference to proposals by British Conservatives to bridge the difficulties which have so far prevented Britain from joining in talks on the plan. Nor did he mention Britain by name when he spoke of "risks."

Mr. Schuman said, however, that in the six-power negotiations in Paris there had been agreement on all essentials.

Born anew

He claimed that the mere presentation of the plan had transformed the political atmosphere of Europe. "Hope has been born anew," he said.

"Between Germany and France the risk of tension had been eliminated. A great step towards reconciliation and peace has thus been taken."

"More than that, the proposal, should it become a reality, implies eventualities which we cannot fully measure at present but which are rapidly developing in the direction of the complete economic and political unification of Europe."

Explaining the plan, Mr. Schuman said, "It will not be a cartel. Nor will it be a defence board. Its sole aim is to produce and sell as much coal and steel as possible at the lowest possible price."—Reuter.

First test of jet on water

Dunbarton, Scotland.

A converted paddle boat driven by four screaming airplane engines made the world's first test today of pure jet propulsion on water. The vessel was the 62-year-old Clyde River veteran, Luck Ashton. Powered by four Rolls Royce Derwent 5 engines, like those used in jet fighters, it dashed up and down the Clyde at a high but undisciplined speed in preliminary trials. The jet engines, mounted in a bank on the deck, helped deliver a thrust of 3,000 pounds each.

Purpose of the test, by the British Shipbuilding Research Association, is to work out the effect of the hull resistance of jet-powered vessels. The Luck Ashton was pulled for the test by a Clyde shipyard tugboat. The vessel was towed by a tugboat from the Clyde shipyard. The vessel was towed by a tugboat from the Clyde shipyard. The vessel was towed by a tugboat from the Clyde shipyard.

Deadlock in Security Council continues

Lake Success, August 10.

The Soviet delegate, Mr. Jacob Malik, adamantly refused today to give way on Russian demands which have held up the Security Council's Korean debate for more than a week.

In an informal meeting lasting an hour and a half, Mr. Malik was told by a majority of members that the procedural wrangles into which he had plunged the Council could not continue indefinitely.

Various delegates tried to convince Mr. Malik that his conduct as President of the Council could lead to no good. Mr. Malik replied that it was entirely in keeping with the Charter and with the rules of procedure.

The United Nations Secretary-General, Mr. Trygve Lie, attended the informal meeting, which was private.

At its official meeting the Council had before it the one adopted item of its agenda—an American motion condemning North Korean aggression—and two proposed Russian resolutions. One, put up last Thursday, called for a cease-fire in Korea, the withdrawal of "foreign" troops, and for Communist China and both North and South Korea to be heard in the debate.

When the public session of the Council was due to start, it was announced that the meeting would be delayed.

Still trying

It was assumed that the 11 delegates were still trying to thrash out their procedural difficulties at the private, informal meeting.

The formal meeting opened with Mr. Malik in the Chair, about half an hour later. Mr. Arne Sunde (Norway) told reporters after the informal meeting, "There is no change in the position." He said that Mr. Malik was completely adamant. Mr. Malik, at the opening of the formal meeting, said that all parties had maintained their original views, adding that it had been agreed that similar unofficial meetings would be held from time to time.

Mr. Warren Austin (America) accused the Russian Chairman of "obstructionism," calling for a 48-hour adjournment and advised Mr. Malik to get new instructions from Moscow.

Mr. Austin said that members of the Council would otherwise have to consult to see what action they could take to get on with the Council's business. Dr. T. F. Tsing, the Chinese Nationalist delegate, challenged Mr. Malik to rule whether a representative of the Korean Republic (South) should be given a hearing.

Attacking "Communist imperialism," Mr. Austin said that above the "88th Parallel all is darkness." To call the instruments of "Communist imperialism" representatives of the Korean people must be only a tragic witicism when addressed to those who know how quickly nationalism, patriotism, and independence in other countries have been crushed to produce subservient puppet governments—governments that breathe, speak and act but have no soul!—Reuter.

Baltimore, August 10. Four Soviet ships due to carry war supplies to Korea were tied up today by a strike of 1,000 employees of the Maryland Drydock Company. The strike, which began from the reserve pool, were being recalled for use in the Korean conflict, which began on Thursday. The strike was called by the United Press.

Austrian may lead Tibet army

Vienna, August 10.

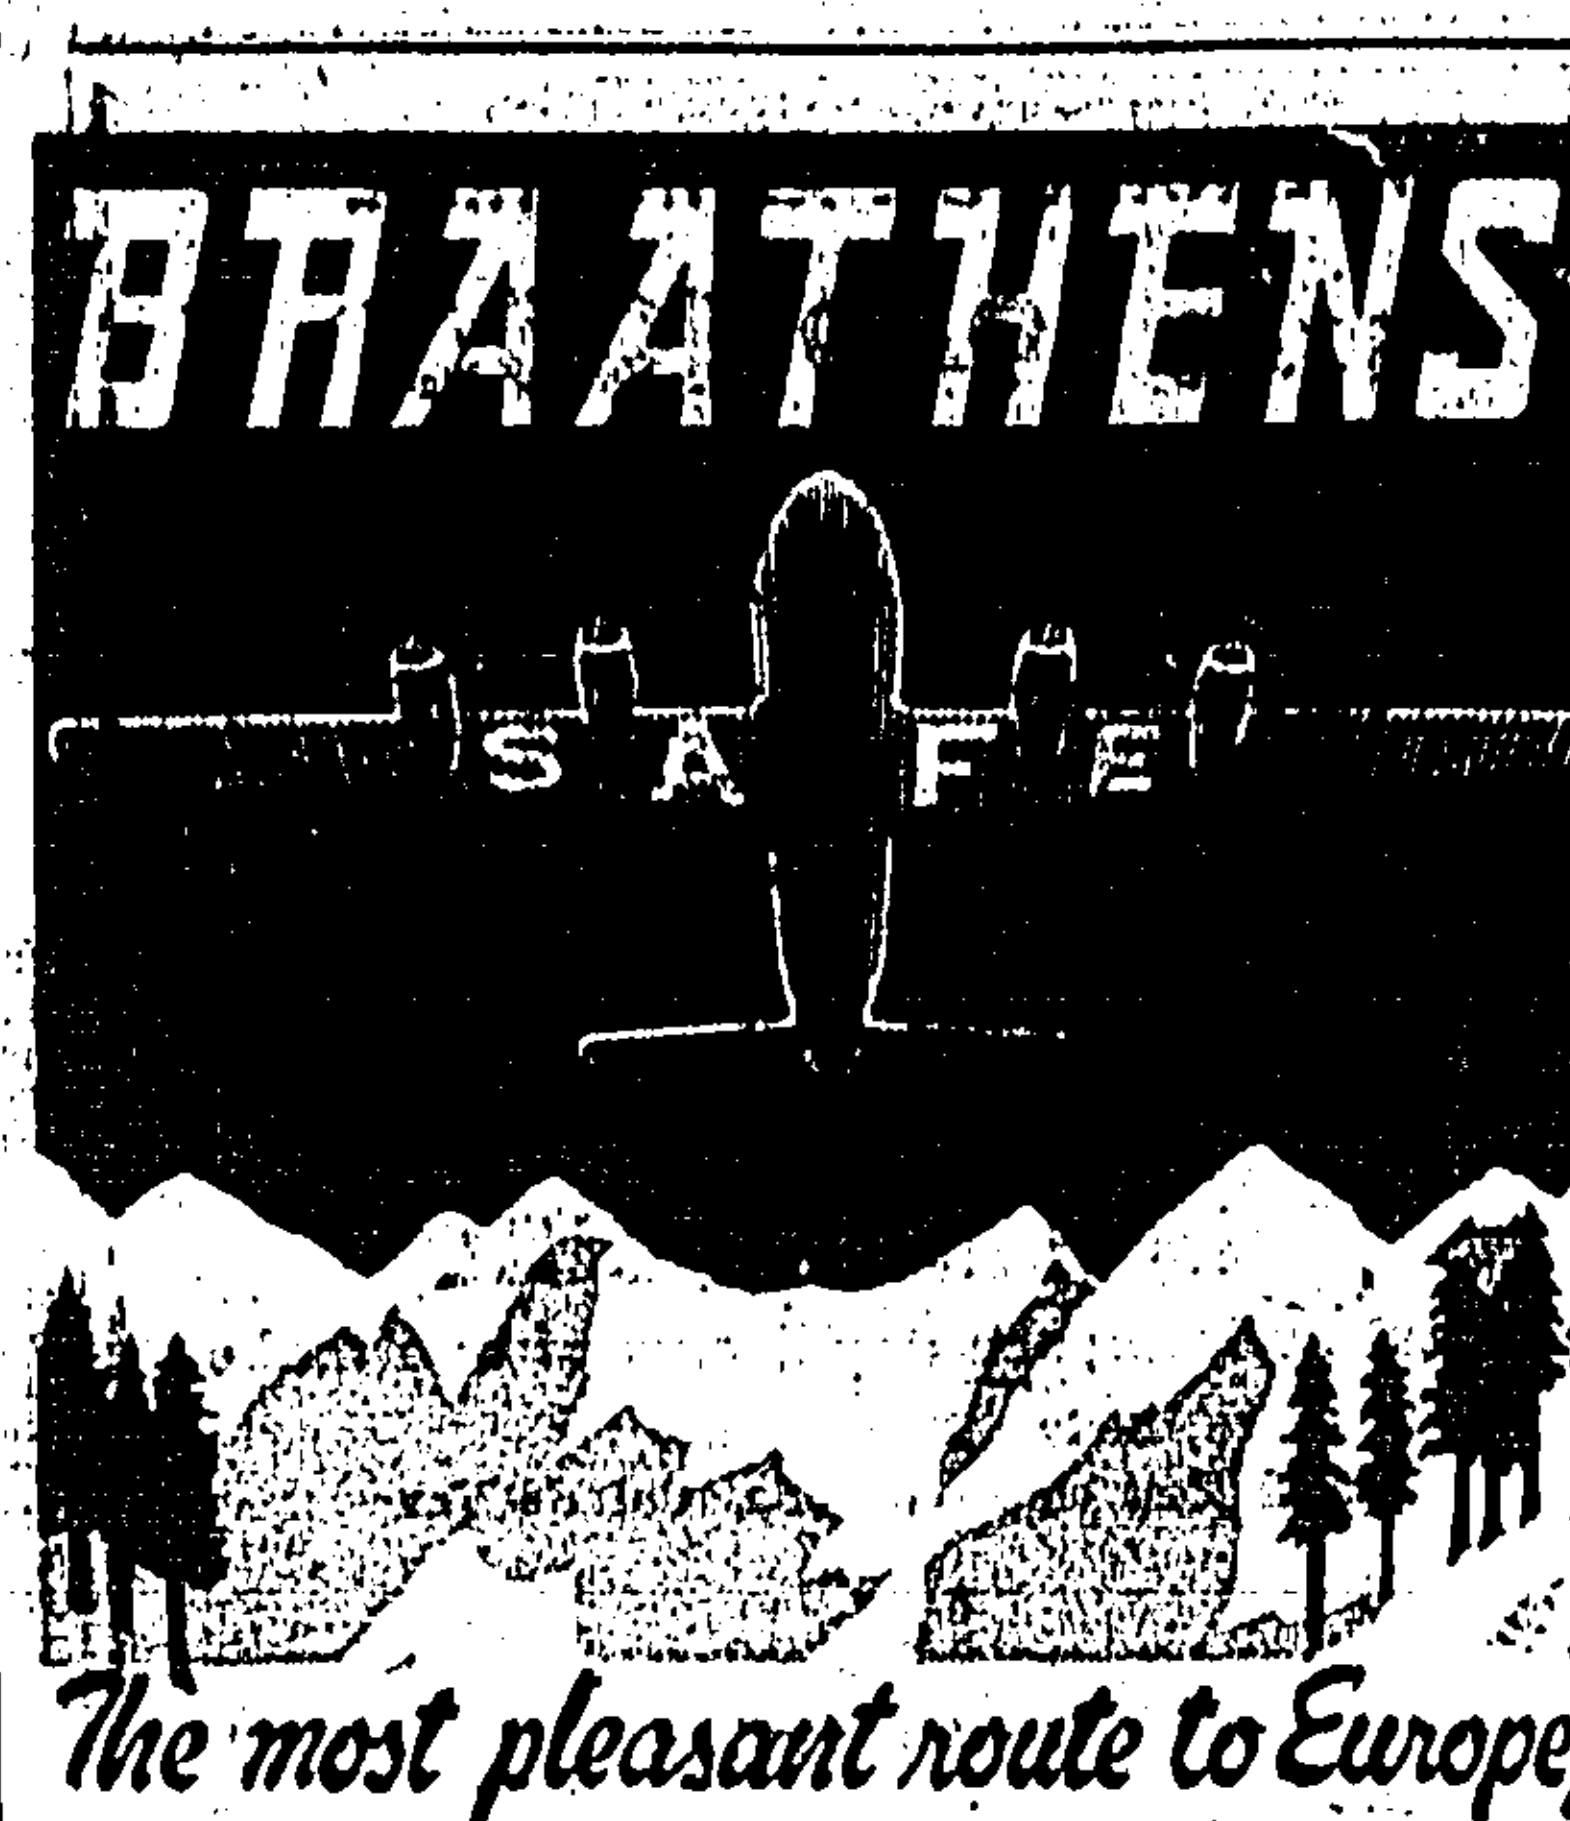

A former Austrian explorer may lead the tiny Tibetan army against the Chinese Communists if Tibet is attacked.

Newspapers here said the supreme commander and adviser of the army of the "Forbidden Land"—is Heini-Harrer, former member of an expedition to the Himalayas.

Harrer, a well known Austrian engineer and mountaineer, was trapped in India during the last war and was interned. He escaped and made his way into Tibet, the newspapers said.

Reaching the holy city of Lhasa, he was given the task of reorganizing the Tibetan army along Western lines by the Dalai Lama, the reports said.

Harrer's 29-year-old sister, Lydia Harter, left Austria last Sunday to join her brother in Lhasa. She told reporters that she would go by plane and rail to the Tibetan border, where her brother would send a mountain caravan to carry her over the Himalayas.—Associated Press.

VOLCANIC DANGER IN INDONESIA

Djakarta, August 10.

Now volcanic disturbances are signalling danger for the populous Indonesian archipelago. Government observers are most concerned about renewed activity of Tangkoeban Praboe crater, 10 miles from West Java's big resort city, Bandoeng.

FUTURE OF CYPRUS

London, August 10. Three "Union with Greece" delegates from Cyprus led by the Bishop of Kyrenia, the Most Reverend Hyphantos, have asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. James Griffiths, to discuss with them the future of Cyprus.

They also wish to submit volumes of signatures collected in a plebiscite which they declared showed that more than 200,000 people, or about 80 per cent of the population, voted for union with Greece.

"We sent a letter to the Colonial Office a few days ago and are now awaiting a reply," Mr. N. K. Lelitis, a former member of the Legislative Council of Cyprus, said today. "If the Colonial Office disappoints us, we intend to take our case before the United Nations."

The delegation, which reached London a week ago, plans to go on to the United States after London, but first awaits the outcome of the talks sought with the British officials.—Reuter.

BELGIAN SENATE APPROVES ABDICATION

Brussels, August 10. The Belgian Upper House, the Senate, tonight approved legislation for the transfer of King Leopold's powers to his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin.

The Bill was approved by the Lower House last night. Prince Baudouin will take the oath of allegiance tomorrow.

The voting in the Senate was 121 in favour (Socialists, Liberals and Catholics), 22 against (all Catholics) and 23 abstentions (19 Catholics and four Communists).

King Leopold decided to abdicate, his powers to his son nine days ago. His decision freed the nation from a threat of civil war.

The delegation of powers will be temporary. When the young Prince becomes of age on September 7, 1951, his father will abdicate and he will ascend to the throne.

Unyieldingly opposed to King Leopold, Socialists and Liberals have pledged themselves to rally around the new Chief of State. Threatened with a split following the King's enfeoffment, pro-Leopold Catholics have also pledged their support.

Prince Baudouin was commissioned as a Lieutenant-General in the Belgian Army (the highest rank) tonight before he takes the oath of allegiance before a joint session of both Houses of Parliament tomorrow. The two Houses will meet to draft a decree providing for the transfer of the Royal powers.

In the Chamber of Deputies for the ceremony the President's tribune will be replaced by a throne.

When Senators and deputies together have approved the decree, the President of the Senate, M. Struye, and the President of the Chamber of Deputies, M. Franz Van Cauwelaert, will walk across to the Royal Palace in Brussels to inform the new Head of State.—Reuter.

'Operation Korea' in Manila

Manila, August 11. Congressional and military quarters today were speeding up measures to get practical implementation of "Operation Korea" under way following President Quirino's formal notification to President Truman and General MacArthur that the Philippines was placing 5,000 troops at the immediate disposal of the United Nations in the conflict.

President Quirino was expected to press Congress today—the last day of its special 10-day session—to pass a 42,000,000-peso (US$21,000,000) emergency appropriation bill for the armed forces, out of which will come funds to defray the costs of the military expedition to Korea.

The reluctance of some legislators to approve without debate all appropriation bills requested in view of the big government deposit has slowed up the process.

Extension of the 10-day special session was postponed until tomorrow.

A few weeks ago Tangkoeban Praboe was a comparatively quiet tourist attraction. You could drive to a tea house at the brim of the giant cone to peer into the cup-like crater. Five hundred feet below, the flat bottom of hardened lava looked like a frozen lake. White sulphurous vapours seeped from three vents.

In early July mud boiled to the surface of the openings, and normal temperatures of 96 Centigrade tripled within a few days. Suddenly the hard crust of the lava lake cracked, leaving four new gurgling mud "springs."

As activity increased, the stench of sulphur reached Bandoeng, and from the city at night, a glow could be seen over the volcano.

A violent mud eruption is almost a certainty within a few weeks, officials of the government volcanological services said. They predicted that hot mud will spew several hundred feet to the crater's brim, and some will spill over.

Roads closed

Roads leading to the crater have been closed, and peasants living high on the slopes have been warned they may have to evacuate. A camp has been set up for government observers standing around-the-clock watches at the edge of the crater rim.

There does not appear to be immediate danger of a catastrophic explosion that will endanger Bandoeng, according to W. A. Petrovsky, director of the government volcanological service.

"But it isn't possible to predict volcanic actions with certainty," he cautioned. "And all we can do now is wait to see what will happen."

More spectacular but probably less dangerous at the moment is Anak Krakatau, a belching volcano island jutting from the ocean between Java and Sumatra.

Four rapid explosions on July 3 shot stones and pumice half a mile into the air. Such periodic outbursts are "normal" for Anak Krakatau, said Petrovsky, and are no cause for undue alarm.

The volcanological service will send surveyors to the island soon to take samples of volcanic material and make a study of its recent activity, he said. The inspection trip by flying boat will be the first scientific survey of the island in three years.

Anak (son of) Krakatau was built up in the last 20 years by a series of eruptions on the site of Krakatau, an island volcano that blew itself out of the water in 1883.

That thunderous explosion set off tidal waves that killed 36,000 people in Indonesia. Its roar was heard 2,000 miles away, and two years later ashes were still drifting to earth over Europe.

Cause for worry

East Java's Keloot, another volcano with a bad past, has been cause for worry recently. The temperature of a lake in its crater has risen "slightly," the last few months but not yet reached a boiling point, Petrovsky said. This increased activity is a danger signal, he explained, although it does not mean a new eruption is imminent.

An explosion under the lake in 1919 splashed scalding mud and water over a wide area and killed 5,110 Indonesians.

Remembering the disaster, people of East Java were struck with terror by an earthquake in June. Word quickly spread that the quake was a prelude to another eruption of Keloot. Actually, there was no connection between the tremors and activity of the volcano, experts explained later.

Bromo, a mountain 30 miles to the East, started billowing great clouds of smoke and ash last May. Since then dense streams of smoke have often risen to a height of one mile over the peak and darkened the countryside over a radius of 50 miles.

Poisonous gases from Keloot have killed some vegetation in the region but otherwise no damage has resulted, and the volcano is not considered high on the danger list.

A river of mud and boulders flowed some weeks ago from Galunggung crater in West Java, destroying rice paddies along a five-mile strip. Observers have been unable to make an on-the-spot investigation because armed gangs of terrorists in the area make it unsafe for travel. From second-hand reports, it is believed the flood was a sliding down of old volcanic debris, not a new lava flow.

In all, 140 volcanoes in Indonesia are active and in a constant state of ferment. It is when their conditions change suddenly that trouble is expected. They have caused major disasters on an average of once every three years and have taken more than 170,000 lives in the islands since 1800.—Associated Press.

Greek-Yugoslav conciliation move

London, August 10. The Foreign Office indicated today that a British envoy may discuss a Greek-Yugoslav conciliation in the course of a visit to the two countries.

A spokesman told reporters that Mr. Ernest Davies, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will be passing through Yugoslavia and Greece "on holiday and for study purposes, not for the purpose of taking any specific diplomatic initiative."

But, he added in reply to a question, Davies may possibly discuss a Yugoslav-Greek reconciliation "if the subject comes up."

Talks for some kind of understanding between Belgrade and Athens have been bogged down for nearly two months. Western powers' efforts to get the two countries together started after the Russian-led Cominform denounced Marshal Tito's regime as traitors to Communism.

Yugoslavia has long been at loggerheads with Greece during the civil war period in the Hellenic kingdom.

Diplomatic informants have reported a determined British bid to bring Yugoslavia closer to the West at a time of heightening East-West tension in Europe.

Besides Mr. Davies, two other British ministers are visiting Yugoslavia. They are the Fuel Minister, Mr. Philip Noel-Baker, and the Secretary for Overseas Trade, Mr. A. G. Bottomley.

Mr. Noel-Baker is also going on to Greece from Yugoslavia. He has close personal ties with several Greek leaders.—Associated Press.

'MARCHING RULE' MOVEMENT ENDS

Suva, Fiji, August 10. The "Marching Rule" civil disobedience movement which hampered restoration of British control after the Japanese surrender was reported today to be folding up.

The authoritative "Fiji Times" ascribed the change from obstruction to co-operation as largely the work of the Resident Commissioner who the paper said, achieved this by tact and understanding sympathy toward the Solomon Islanders.

Press reports had previously described the "Marching Rule" as an "anti-British rising of the Melanesian people with pro-American aid and pro-Communist leading."—United Press.

DON IDDON'S DIARY

Bermuda, Wednesday. The American drops into these exquisite British islands, has his fun, and drops out again.

He doesn't need a passport, an entry or an exit permit, a currency clearance, visa, or official document of any kind.

All he needs is his American accent and his dollars.

The Englishman (myself) to get here, and to leave here, needs a batch of Government papers as long as his arm.

To spend this holiday on British soil I had to pay my American income tax in advance, confer with immigration officials, queue up in the aliens' division of the Department of Internal Revenue, produce my passport, three photographs, a letter from my editor vouching for my status, obtain a new visa, lay bare my travellers' cheques, and pay head tax coming in and before going out.

Cut the red tape

The U.S. citizen has apparently become the lord of humankind. The dollar is almighty, whether the United Jack flies over the land in which it is spent or not.

I announce my irritation over this arrangement and call for a change. All the privileges and facilities handed to Americans visiting British possessions should surely be granted to the Englishman spending time on his own soil or returning to American territory.

Bermuda is a good place to start. Cut out the red tape and the regulations for the British visitor and it will be perfect.

These islands are a holiday paradise. If I were 30 years older and written out I would probably stay here for ever.

That is, I would stay if I had amassed a fortune. Bermuda is an expensive place. The price of pleasure comes high.

To live well you have to pay exorbitant sums. And even when you set up your own house-keeping the prices are brutal. One and six pence for a loaf of bread, six for a dozen eggs, 3s. for half-a-pound of bacon, 4s. for a small tin of salmon, 6d. for a daily newspaper.

And when you dine out, whether at one of the ritzy hotels or the smart restaurants, your lunch will cost you £1 and your dinner 30s.

These charges are not so bad for the American loaded with dollars. Devaluation of the £ sterling has been a wonderful windfall for him; he can get excellent British clothes—flannels and blazers, cashmere jackets, silk dressing-gowns—for half the price he would have to pay in New York.

As for liquor, the Bermudians practically give it away, in the American view. Prestige brand of Scotch for 18s. a bottle, gin for 12s., rum for 8s. But the cut prices end with the alcohol. Almost everything else is in the millionaire's price range.

The reason is that these islands, 22 miles long and about 1½ miles wide, with a population of 35,000-40,000, import everything by which they live. Sometimes the meat comes all the way from Australia. There is often a shortage of fresh fruit and fresh milk.

Some years ago they grew vegetables and even sold them to the Americans, but United States tariffs made this uneconomic, and now they grow only a little celery and flowers—hibiscus, gladioli, lilies, bright shrubs, and vines.

So that all Bermuda, despite the cedar-blight, is a blaze of bloom. The flowers bring the visitors, and the visitors bring the money.

Bermuda lives on the tourist, and it lives well. This is a prosperous, even booming, Eden in the mid-Atlantic. It thrives all the year round, whatever happens to the rest of the world.

Today the islands are full of honeymooners, strolling ecstatically along the narrow lanes, and batches of women school-teachers, secretaries, female executives of one kind or another, spending their holidays "abroad," and hoping, perhaps, to pick up a husband as a final long shot.

The Bermudians take all the assorted tourists and trippers in unflinching pride. They are a fiercely independent and proud people rather superior and sometimes snobbish.

British stamp

This sunny country is stamped with the British stamp. It has resisted American encroachment fiercely.

The Coney Island influence is completely lacking. There is no flashing neon sign, no boarding or posters, no night clubs, fun fairs, amusement parks.

The local people and the visiting English dress most decorously, but the Yanks can be spotted a mile off wearing their sunsets, rainbow-coloured, lightning-flash shirts and ugly tight shorts.

The Americans, who have a 99-year lease on the air base here, have done a tremendous job building Kindley Field. They actually increased Bermudian territory by two square miles by filling in shallow water and reclaiming beachland.

Move resented

How are the English from the United Kingdom doing? I am sorry to report that we are closing down HM Dockyard after operating a naval squadron from here for nearly 200 years.

Bermudians are boiling with resentment over this retreat. They say if Churchill were Prime Minister the dockyard would not have been ordered to close down.

Five hundred local people will lose their jobs as a result of this economy measure. This is our Socialist shame.

Bermuda is bitterly anti-Socialist in other ways. In fact, it could be called feudal. That the coloured outnumber the white by almost 2-1 is never forgotten.

To have the vote here you have to own property assessed at £200 but actually amounting to several hundred pounds in value.

And the plural vote exists here—if you have property in several places you have several votes. I am assured that reforms are imminent, but I wonder.

There is no great outcry about the fact that trade unions do not exist here, that free milk for school children has been rejected as a pampering measure—"next thing you know they will be asking for free steaks."

Everybody happy

Bermudians prefer to move slowly. An oligarchy of business men—the Butterfields, Spurlings, Watlingsons, Trimingham, Goslings, Darrells, Tuckers, Smiths, Coxes, and Trotts—control the island, but they are benevolent despots.

They own the banks, the shops, the property. They own and run the show and have done for 200 years. They control the Parliament—the second oldest in the world.

When you say to them: "What about progressive social legislation?" They reply: "Why, almost everyone here is happy." And the truth is, they are.

There are no slums, no poverty, no distress. In the Bermudian gets along well. There is always the sunshine, the sea, and a cool paradise everyone gets along and place to sleep.

Footnote: In a world of unrest Bermuda makes the claim. These are the isles of rest.

AFRICAN LEADER WARNED OFF

London, August 10.

The British Colonial Office has told Mr. I. K. Musaki, President of the African Farmers' Union, banned in Uganda after last year's rioting there, that he will be deported if he returns to the Colony.

The Africa League, an unofficial African organisation in London, today published details of a letter received by Mr. Musaki, who was planning to return to Uganda, from Mr. James Griffiths, British Colonial Secretary.

The Colonial Office confirmed that Mr. Griffiths had written to Mr. Musaki, but would not disclose the letter's contents.

The Africa League, of whose Executive Council Mr. Musaki is a member, said that the threatened deportation from Uganda because of his alleged part in the riots of April, 1949, in which eight people were killed.

An official report published last February placed the blame for the disturbances on the African Farmers' Union and the Batika Party, which was said to have Communist contacts overseas.

Today's Africa League statement condemned the threatened deportation as a "complete denial of human rights" and demanded its withdrawal, with an assurance that Mr. Musaki could return home at any time without being molested.

Responsible body

The Colonial Secretary's letter, referring to Mr. Musaki's planned return home, said: "The Government of Uganda has considered this in the light of the consequences of a report to the Commission of Enquiry into the disturbances of 1949, where it is recorded—that the Uganda Farmers' Union, of which you were President and prime mover, was one of the bodies responsible for the riots, which caused loss of life in Uganda."

"Having regard to this report and to your subsequent activities, the Government of Uganda would feel bound to deport you immediately under Article 25 of the Uganda order in Council of 1950 should you arrive in that territory at any time in the near future."

Mr. Musaki said that the deportation order would mean that he would have no chance to answer the charges made against him, and that his conscience was perfectly clear.

He would postpone his return to Uganda until Mr. Fenner Brockway, British Labour Member of Parliament, and Mr. John Dugdale, Minister of State for Colonial Affairs, could report to Mr. Griffiths on the situation in Uganda. He added that should Mr. Griffiths maintain the ban on the African Farmers' Union and the deportation threat he would challenge "this violation of liberty" by returning to Uganda whatever the consequences to himself.—Reuter.

America may move families from Germany

Frankfurt, August 10.

The war in Korea may force American commanders in Germany to take drastic measures to get more men for combat units and lead to the return of American families to the United States.

United States Armed Force chiefs here have so far maintained complete calm over the Korean fighting. None believes a Soviet attack on Germany is imminent. Some even feel that the prompt American acceptance of the Soviet-backed challenge in Korea has decreased the threat to Germany.

Most, however, agree with the United States High Commissioner,
Mr. John J. McCloy, that more divisions are needed to defend Western Europe. Mr. McCloy stated recently: "We have not enough divisions in all of Western Europe. We should have more." The "element of strength," he added, was of paramount political importance.

Competent observers have believed that the shortage of American ground troops in the Far East has drawn attention to an even more critical shortage in Germany.

Whereas Army figures placed the United States troop strength in Japan at 125,000, organized into four divisions, the United States in Germany is given as 20,000, formed into only two divisions, the 1st and the Constabulary, recently reorganised from a police outfit into an armoured force.

Housekeeping units

This means that, including supporting units, not more than 50,000 of the 90,000 troops in Germany form combat units. The bulk of the remainder are "housekeeping units" ministering to occupation families.

There are some 17,000 such families in Germany. To brighten life in a foreign land, the Army has created, with impressive success, a "little America," complete with Coca-Cola and speed cops in gleaming white cars.

Occupation families live in comfortable homes with servants.
They shop in department store-type post exchanges, eat ice cream in strategically placed snack bars, dine in reasonably luxurious clubs, send their children to American schools, and market in supermarket-type commissaries.

A "Special Service" division, headed by a Major-General, is devoted entirely to the operation of post exchanges, cinemas and the booking of entertainment, tours and athletics events.
This verbiage of American culture on the bleak German scene has been remarkably successful in maintaining high morale among the Occupation forces. But it is extremely costly in terms of manpower.

The United States Zone of Occupation, for example, is organized into 13 military posts, corresponding to the administrative apparatus of a city. Each post is headed by a Brigadier General or a Colonel, with several hundred officers and several thousand enlisted men on his staff.

The military post operates commissaries; creates family furniture; does household repairs; finds homes for incoming families; provides military police and fire protection, runs schools; collects garbage operates bus lines; and takes care of the odds and ends of day-to-day living.

Though thousands of Germans are employed in these tasks, a large part of the potential American combat strength in Germany is pinned down in supervisory functions.

A Lieutenant Colonel, for instance, operates a rest centre, supplies hotels and a full Colonel supervises the German recreation centre in Bavaria.

Acclimatising kennels
At Bremenhaven, the United States enclave in the British Zone, the Army has established a reception centre for incoming and outgoing service families, complete with an hotel, special feeding for children, and acclimatising kennels for pets.

To suggestions in the past that families be returned to the United States, the Army has pointed to criticism of the United States forces during the immediate postwar period.

Families, it is stated, have immeasurably improved morale, morals and discipline. A favorite quip at Army clubs immediately after the arrival of the first families was: "The men are the same, only the women are different."

There are some officers and men who feel, however, that if relations with Russia continue to deteriorate families may prove a psychological, if not physical, burden.

As an Air Force captain puts it: "My first duty, of course, is to the Service, but while my wife and child are here I am caught between two fires."

Long before the "cold war" became hot in Korea, Lieutenant General Clarence Huebner, the retiring United States troop commander in Europe, carried out an extensive reorganisation of his command to put more service troops into combat units.

Many observers here believe the return of families to the United States is not merely a matter of personal safety but the only way quickly to obtain more fighting men for Germany—

Trying to buy
N. Ireland!

London, August 10.
Millionaire John J. Hanley, billed here as "The Baron of Broadway," was thinking up a new line of approach in his bid to buy up the six counties of Northern Ireland and hand them over to the Southern Republic.

Hanley drove up to the doors of No. 10 Downing Street in a rakish straw hat and baggy pants the other day and demanded to see the Prime Minister. Apparently he thought Mr. Attlee was in a position to sell out Northern Ireland if the offer was big enough.

"I want to buy Northern Ireland and give it to Eire," Hanley told the footman who opened the door to his knocking. "I was going to offer
Mr. Attlee £4,500,000 for it."

At that point a London
bobby arrived on the scene.
"Have you an appointment?"
the policeman asked.

When Hanley said he had no appointment, the policeman asked him to leave.
Hanley purred off in his big limousine, with American flags fluttering from the fenders.

Hanley said he had already been to Belfast to try to discuss his proposal with Northern Irish Government officials. But a riot started;
police squads were called out and he did not get to see anybody.—United Press.

JAPAN OCCUPATION CHANGE RUMOURED

London, August 10.

General Douglas MacArthur's preoccupation with war in Korea prompted the speculation here today that the occupation of Japan might be switched from the military to civilian basis, as has been done in Germany and agreed upon for Austria.

Some Press reports from Tokyo during the past week strongly intimated that General Mac-Arthur's preoccupation with military affairs as against diplomatic matter has resulted in the discomfiture of the heads of various missions.

The London "Daily Mail" said Sir Alvary Gascoigne, head of the British Mission in Japan who used to see General MacArthur twice a month, has not had an interview since the start of the conflict in Korea. The report said that Sir Alvary feels that "this deprivation of access to the highest authority seriously reduces the efficiency of his functions."

One important result of General MacArthur's preoccupation with external matters was said to be that various Allied missions found themselves cut off from sources of official information about the American policy toward Japan.

Heads of Allied missions were still foggy regarding the United States policy toward Taiwan.
In the British official view it is fully appreciated that the whole purpose of the American action is simply to check any spread of conflict in the Far East.

Officials said President Truman's June 27 statement ordering the United States Seventh Fleet to prevent any attack on Taiwan was obviously intended only for policing of the area and to make Communist attack impossible.

The belief prevails in official quarters now, however, that there has been a change in the American policy toward Taiwan since June 27. Some sources said it was becoming apparent that the United States administration had accepted the contention that the United States Seventh Fleet could not guarantee the security of Taiwan—unaided and additional military guarantees were needed.

The dearth of any official advice direct from Tokyo was said to be making Britain's position
"many times more difficult" and it was understood that recommendations were being made by the heads of the Allied missions that arrangements should be speedily made for more effectual collaboration on the political aspects of the Far Eastern scene.

One authoritative comment was:
"The degrees by which the United States policy toward Japan and Taiwan has changed since the start of the war in Korea have been markedly subtle.
There is the need now for full scale diplomatic co-operation as well as military collaboration among Allied missions in Japan."—United Press.

ELEPHANT DOESN'T LIKE OFFICIALS

Colombo, August 9.
The Governor General and other high officials today narrowly escaped when a herd of wild elephants stampeded during a round-up deep in the jungle.

The official party was standing in a stockade watching slaves try to lasso captive elephants when one big bull trumpeted and made straight to the Governor General, who managed to creep under the fence just before the enraged elephant crashed into the stout pillars.

One official, the Earl of Cath-ness, hurried the main gate and Sir Francis Molamure, Speaker of the Parliament, vaulted over the fence and plunged into a stream as other elephants followed the bull's lead.—United Press.

Warning on tin supplies

London, August 10. The British Ministry of Supply warned tin dealers this morning that they must no longer rely on the Ministry for supplies of tin.

The announcement came after the end of morning dealings in which prices had risen a further three to four pounds sterling, on top of yesterday's jump of £22 to an all-time record of £776.

Although some such action by the Ministry had been more or less expected, it was thought that prices might rise still higher. Some dealers were believed to have been making forward sales in reliance on an assured supply from the Ministry's stock.

Today's announcement followed indications yesterday that the Ministry was becoming a reluctant seller. Current prices would show the Ministry an excellent profit. But it has already sold much of its stock, mainly to the United States directly or indirectly.

It may contemplate retaining much of all the remainder for the British and American Governments' own strategic stockpiles.

This afternoon, after the Ministry's announcement, tin in London for forward delivery closed at the all-time high record price of £775 to £800 a ton, compared with £767 to £768 this morning.

Tin for immediate delivery was "buyer only" at £780.

Dealers in New York temporarily suspended trading.

On the futures market, sellers sharply raised their asking prices. Hubber in New York went to the other extreme. Following the collapse in prices in Singapore and London, it opened "sellers only" at the maximum permitted daily decline.—Reuter.

STEEL ROVER REACHES SAIGON

Saigon, August 10. The American freighter, Steel Rover, carrying the first shipment of United States military aid for Indo-China, arrived here today after a 60-mile run up the Saigon River without incident.

A detachment of French troops was put aboard the 10,000-ton vessel for the trip to Saigon's river port from the South China Sea. Vessels sometimes come under guerrilla fire from the river banks.

Members of the crew were ordered to stay off the exposed decks during the river voyage in anticipation of possible trouble. The ship last week was forced to turn back to Hong Kong shortly after leaving the Colony when it was fired on.

The Steel Rover will begin unloading its military and commercial cargo this afternoon. Military vehicles of all types were lashed on to the ship's deck.

The dock area where the Steel Rover is tied up is cordoned off by French Colonial troops. So far there was no indication of any Vietnam-inspired demonstration as had been threatened earlier.

The Steel Rover will leave for Bangkok in about two days. A second American vessel carrying arms for French and Vietnamese forces fighting the Communist-led Vietnam is expected to arrive very shortly.—Associated Press.

MACDONALD ATTACKS RUSSIAN AGGRESSION

Singapore, August 10. Britain's Commissioner General in South East Asia, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, tonight made his second scathing attack in three days against the Kremlin and "the tyranny of the arch-communist Stalin."

Last Monday he accused Moscow of inspiring Red revolts in every country in Asia.

Mr. MacDonald said tonight the Russian Government was the perpetrator behind the aggression in Korea. He lauded the United States for stepping "so swiftly and firmly into the breach" in Korea.

"This, he said, is the latest of several indications that the American nation is resolved to give all the aid it can to halt Russian imperialism and Communism in Asia and the West."

"Russian war"

Mr. MacDonald revealed that in past wars American intervention "was in the end decisive." But he added, "on each of these occasions American public opinion insisted before it was resolved to complete military commitment to the cause of the democracies."

"That this mighty power is now the first to decide on resistance to aggression is an event of truly historic importance," he said.

London, August 10. The Edinburgh Festival will play host to the artistic world for the fourth time when the International Festival of Music and Drama will offer a wider variety of artists than ever before. And it seems likely to attract more paying guests than any previous Festival.

During the three weeks from August 20-September 10, the Edinburgh Festival will exchange artistic and administrative experience with the Netherlands and Salzburg Festivals, although each will retain its distinctive flavour.

FIERCE BATTLE WAGED FOR POHANG AIRFIELD

The spokesman said the Second North Korean Division, which has spearheaded that part of the attack, has been joined in the line by the Third Division.

Recently captured prisoners came from one regiment of the crack First Division, which apparently has been on the move from its supporting position behind the Sixth Division facing Task Force Kean.

The North Korean 13th and 14th Divisions are also in the same area, the spokesman said. This means perhaps 40,000 men—and more if all the First Division has reached the river—are poised on the west bank for a push which the spokesman said would be aimed at Taegu. A Communist attack at midnight yesterday was met by one of the most successful South Korean counter-attacks yet reported.

A spokesman said the Sixth and Eighth South Korean divisions in a co-ordinated counter-attack, met the assault and carried it back several miles.

The U.S. Navy reported that its pilots, flying from two carriers, scored their largest total kill in a series of sweeps on Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday.

Strikes ranged from Kaesong on the North of Yosu at the Southern tip of the peninsula. Twenty troops were killed, three tanks destroyed and 12 damaged, five bridges destroyed and a variety of other targets assaulted by the Navy planes. They centred bomb attacks on Inchon, blasting factories, warehouses and oil tanks with 1,500 pound bombs.—Associated Press.

SWEDISH FIELD HOSPITAL FOR SOUTH KOREA

Stockholm, August 11. The Swedish Red Cross will charter four Skymasters to carry staff to New York for the field hospital that Sweden is sending to South Korea in response to the Security Council's call for aid. The first contingent will leave on August 26 and will continue to South Korea about a week later. Swedish officers have already bought hospital equipment in New York.—Reuter.

NZ TO RESTORE DEATH PENALTY

Wellington, August 11. The New Zealand Government today introduced a Bill to restore the death sentence which the Labour Government here abolished some years ago. The Bill also provides that convicted murderers now, or in the future, undergoing life imprisonment shall not be released for at least 20 years, regardless of whether they were originally sentenced to death or not.—Reuter.

Chamber music

Visitors will hear the Edinburgh Royal Choral Union sing Brahms' "Ave Maria" while those who live for chamber music will hear a series entitled Beethoven and his contemporaries marking the bicentenary of the famed composer's death.

But modern composers also are given their due. William Primrose, the famed violin virtuoso, will give the first European performance of Beethoven's Viola Concerto. A number of works by Benjamin Britten will be offered, as well as two contest-winning symphonies.

The King and Queen have not yet decided whether they will attend, but have granted Royal patronage to the Festival. Queen Elizabeth attended in 1947 and again last year.

All Edinburgh will look transformed when the Festival opens on August 20. The Castle, dominating the entire countryside, will be flooded, and Prince's Gardens will be filled with strolling couples—if the weather is warm.—United Press.

Making his mark

John Basing of London has just designed a new alphabet which has won a competition run by the Assay Office in Birmingham, Britain's largest city. The Assay Office looks after hallmarks placed on gold and silver and the Birmingham Assay Office has been doing it for 177 years. In fact it has used up seven different alphabets and now it will start on Mr. Basing's lettering. G. R. Hughes explained this somewhat complicated business of hall marks. There are four marks on an article, the maker's initials, the town mark of the Office to which the article is sent for assay, in other words to be chemically tested, the mark showing the standard of the metal, and the mark giving the year when the article was tested. It is the fourth mark which was the subject of the competition. The Birmingham Assay Office wanted a set of letters extremely simple in outline as they would sometimes have to be reproduced by punches no bigger than a pin's head. Each year has its own letter, forming a succession of alphabets of varying type. These are contained in distinctive shields and by identifying the date letter in the hallmark of any piece of British plate and studying its combination with the other hallmarks the year in which the piece was tested is determined.

Hallmarks had their origin at Goldsmith's Hall in London in the 14th century. They are now recognised as a sign of integrity and of the high quality which British traders and craftsmen have tried to maintain for hundreds of years. King Edward the First ruled that no gold or silver ware should be sold before it had been tested and marked with the leopard's head which was originally taken from the royal arms. Later on this head became London's town mark and for the last six centuries has been used in the Assay Office at Goldsmith's Hall. There are Assay Offices in several big towns and Birmingham has an anchor. Sheffield a crown with silver and York a rose on gold. Chester a sword between wheat sheaves, Edinburgh a castle, and Glasgow a composite mark of tree, bird, fish and ring. Goldsmiths and silversmiths in Britain are required to produce work which can compare favourably with that done by their predecessors 600 years ago. During the 1951 Festival of Britain an exhibition of it will be on view in the City of London at the Hall of the Northampton Company of Goldsmiths.

COMMUNIST NEWSPAPERS BANNED

Hamburg, August 10. Two more Communist newspapers were banned for three months by the Allied High Commission today—the third and fourth to be shut down in a week.

Today's ban was on the Düsseldorf "Prolet Volk" and the Cologne "Volksstimme," both in the British Zone. Their printing plants were also shut down for three months.

It is understood that the article for which they were banned accused the Bonn Government of acting as an intermediary in providing arms for the United States.

This article accused the West German Economics Minister, Herr Erhard, of placing foreign currency at the disposal of an American arms concern.

Two days ago, the British authorities at Horno, North Rhine Westphalia, closed a printing press of the Communist "Rheinisch-Westfälische Volksfreund" and banned the paper for one month following the discovery of about three million Communist leaflets attacking the American action in Korea.

The American High Commission last week suspended a Frankfurt Communist daily for 90 days. Two Communist papers in the French Zone are banned for publishing articles detrimental to the occupation powers.—Reuter.

EUROPE HAS ACHIEVED ECONOMIC BALANCE

Paris, August 10.

Most Western European countries have achieved a reasonable balance between inflation and deflation, according to a report of the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation.

The 140-page report on internal financial stability approved by the OEEC's 18-nation council asserts that the most potent factor in the curbing of inflation has been increasing production.

It said that industrial production was considerably above the pre-war level in most countries and agricultural production was approaching that mark.

The OEEC's executive committee chairman emphasised that the report was drawn up prior to the Korean war and therefore did not take into account Western Europe's heavier defence expenditures for the future.

He added, however, that the present methods adopted by the countries should ensure that extra burdens will be distributed in such a way as to avoid undue inflation. The report warned the member nations that failure to adapt themselves to the prospect of diminishing American economic aid would gravely undermine their ability to maintain stable conditions in the future.

Meanwhile it was announced here today that French motorists will no longer be able to buy pure petrol, but will have to use mixtures containing at least 10 per cent alcohol.

Deputy Philippe Monin announced this today after an interview with M. Jean Louvel, the Minister of Industry and Commerce.

Monin led delegations of alcohol-producers who have been pressing the Government for ways to get rid of their surplus.

M. Monin said the new decree would appear at once, but he did not say when it would go into effect.

Motorists will have a choice between a nine-to-one petrol and alcohol, and a "super-fuel" containing 85 per cent petrol, 10 per cent alcohol, and 5 per cent benzol—United Press and Associated Press.

GRAIN MARKET STATIONARY

Chicago, August 10.

Wheat managed to climb

usually volatile commodity.

Washington, August 10.
The Senate Finance Committee voted today to boost corporation income taxes to yield about $1,500,000,000 yearly retroactive to July 1.

Under the bill—if passed by the Congress—corporations will pay a tax rate of 45 per cent on profits above $25,000 a year, com-

CHINA MAIL

HONG KONG, SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1950.

Lawn Bowls:

CLUB DE RECREIO 'BLUE' FAVOURED TO BEAT KCC

By "JACK-HIGH"

If Mr. Weatherman favours local Lawn Bowlers with a friendly smile today, a total of nine matches in the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls League will be played—four in the First Division, two in the Second and three in the Third.

The most interesting game in the First Division will be at Cox's Road, where the Kowloon Cricket Club entertain the formidable Club de Recreio "Blue" team, which includes several Shanghai bowlers of repute.

However, the home team will be greatly strengthened by the inclusion of W. Hong Sing, who is turning out for the Club after an absence of five weeks.

Still, the odds are slightly in favour of the Recreio "Blue" although they are playing on a foreign green. They should come away with at least four of the five points.

Without Len Sykes, their star skip leading them, it looks as if the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, who are at home to the Kowloon Dock Club, will lose. The Dock team, who have done remarkably well this season, should not have much difficulty in defeating their hosts on the form they have displayed so far, but they must not treat their opponents too lightly, otherwise they will find themselves losing by a narrow margin.

Unblemished record

The Indian Recreation Club will be visiting the Police Recreation Club without one of their mainstays, U. M. Omar, who has left the Colony.

The Indians are the only team in all the three Divisions still with a 100 per cent record and will not have much difficulty in maintaining an unblemished record against the Custodians of the Law.

The Craigengower Cricket Club will be clashing with the Hong Kong Football Club at Craigengower and the match will be a very even one indeed, but with the advantage of playing on their own green, last year's champions will most probably emerge the victors.

Last week, the Talkoo Dock Club narrowly lost to the Indian Recreation Club, present leaders of the Second Division.

Today Talkoo will be visiting the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. In their present fighting mood, the Talkoo bowlers should come away with full points, which would mean that they will still be within challenging distance of the leaders.

The match between the Kowloon Cricket Club and the Hong Kong Cricket Club at Cox's Road will be watched with great interest, as a win for the home team will give them more than "a leg" up on the Second Division League Championship. They are at present three points behind the leaders with two games in hand. Their opponents, the Hong Kong Cricket Club, will be all out to win, as a loss would mean their hopes for the title this year being frustrated.

A slight edge

The game is bound to be closely contested, but the Kowloon Cricket Club will have a slight edge, as they are playing on their home green.

The 11th of the Third Division matches will be the meeting of the league leaders, the Kowloon Dock Club and the Indian Recreation Club at Hung Hom.

HAMBURG INT'L LAWN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Hamburg, August 10. Australia's Billy Sidwell, France's Bernard Destremau, Egypt's Jaroelav, Drobny, and Gottfried von Cramm of Germany today reached the semi-finals of the Hamburg International Lawn Tennis Championships.

Sidwell beat Heredia Weiss of Argentina 6-4, 7-5, 6-2. Destremau defeated Horst Hermann, Germany, 7-5, 6-1, 6-3.

Australia's Adrian, who played against von Cramm, gave up after the third set, owing to strained shoulder muscles.

The German ace led 6-3, 3-6, 7-5 at the time. Drobny gained the semi-final round by forfeit when Jack Harter of Australia withdrew with a sore back.

Bad golf can be divided into bad shots

By HENRY LONGHURST

Though, unlike the music-hall vocalists, I cannot claim to receive many "special requests," there have reached me no fewer than two. Such overwhelming public demand is not to be ignored and, at the risk of losing one satisfied customer who recently assured his continued patronage "so long as you don't put too much golf in it," I propose to satisfy the other two by writing about their own golf.

Both are handicap players, and both are preparing for their holidays. Both, in effect, say "Never mind about Locke and the rest of them. What about something for us?"

They wish to improve their game but, like others who take cues, go on diets, or attempt to give up smoking, prefer to do it at no great pain to themselves. Well, gentlemen, there is hope for you. Bad golf can be divided into bad shots that you can't help—we can't all be pros—and bad shots that you can. As to the latter, all may be painlessly eliminated, merely by applying to golf the adult intelligence that you apply to your business.

Why, for instance, should a man who controls the destinies of some vast, intricate concern for six days a week take a spoon-out of the rough on the seventh, when it is all he can do to get the ball up with the same club from a decent lie on the fairway? Or take a sharp-faced niblick to pitch over innocent firm, flat ground, when any club, including the driver and putter, would do the job better?

Elementary mechanics

For occasions when you have to elevate the ball, I pass on the teachings of Charles Whitcombe, its sleek new pupils to pitch over a bunker with a mashie-niblick. They hit it along the ground. He then tells them to hit it along the ground with the same club, whereupon the ball flies instantly into the air—which is not the consequence of providence or Charles Whitcombe, but elementary mechanics.

Replying to the question, "What is the chief fault of the amateur?" Whitcombe says:

Tom is over 60, but he's still as fit as they. He's got enough to go into the ring with a boxer who wants to "feel out" to train with professional footballers in order to analyse their methods, and capable of talking technicalities to them or to anyone else in everyday language.

That's why I feel I like his book, "Human Kinetics," due out shortly. It will be a winner among sports-folk.

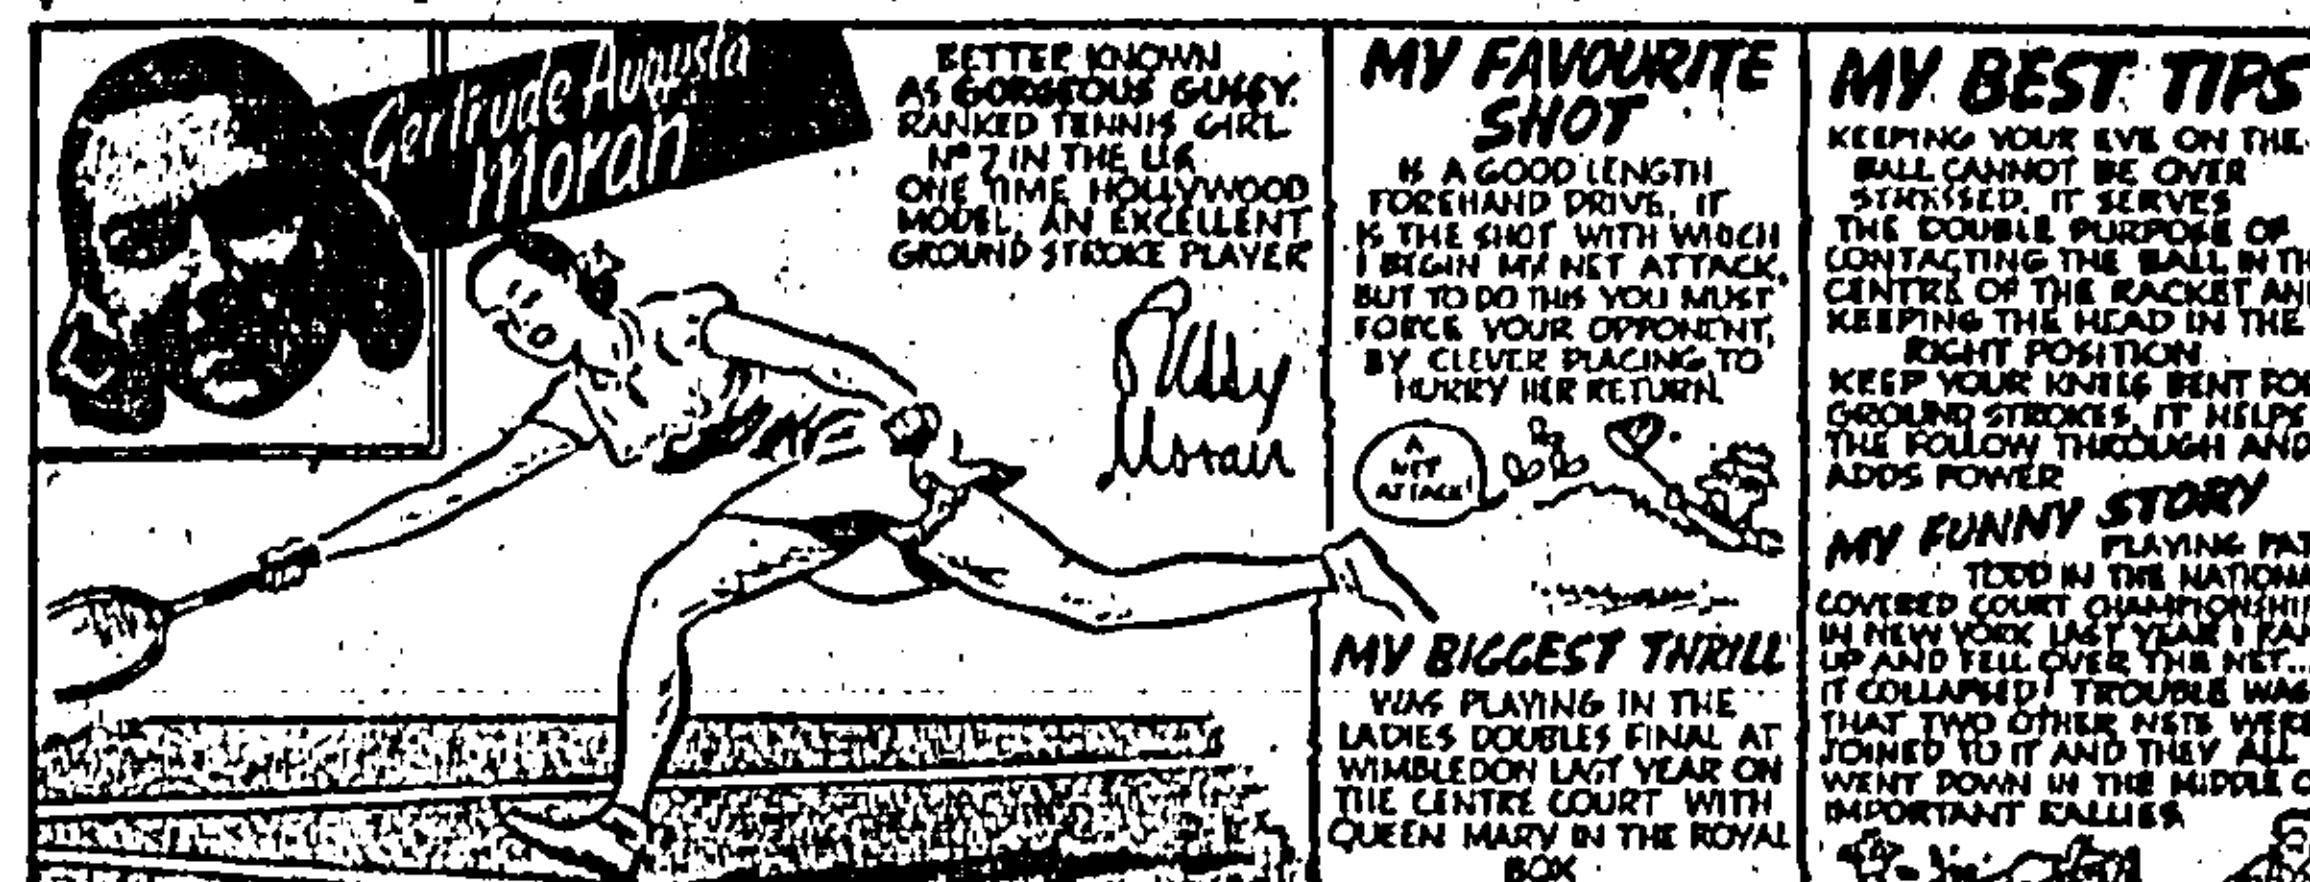

Only two names

If the reader expects it to be full of names, he'll be unlucky. It contains only two, and both of them are goalkeepers—Moscow Dynamo's "Tiger" Khomel, and Scotland's own Harry Kinnear.

Tom told me how, on the morning of the Dynamo-Glasgow match, knowledgeable football folk laughed as they saw Khomel walking away from an appointment with him. "What are you laughing at?" he asked. "Oh, he can't be much of a goalkeeper," was the reply.

"That," said Tom, "is where you are wrong. His movement suggests to me that he'll be the best goalkeeper I've seen since Harry Kinnear—and he's still sure he was right."

Billy Steel named as soccer's fittest player

By HAROLD MAYES

How do you judge physical fitness? There are all sorts of standards, from wartime army "if you're breathing you're in," to that of the highly-trained professional footballer or athlete.

Have you ever stopped for a moment, as you're watching your favourite performers in their respective spheres, to measure one against the other on the score of bodily capacity for their chosen sport?

You can see how each activity calls for something different in physique, stamina and style. It is a subject about which you can talk endlessly, like comparing the "greats" of one generation with those of another.

I have just spent the best part of a week discussing such topics with one of Britain's leading authorities, Tom Anderson, principal of the Scottish Physiotherapy Hospital, who can talk better than any reference book about every part of the athletic body, from the muscles which give thrust to power-driven Arthur Wint to the little toe of Billy Steel.

"Come to Arran, Scotland's island paradise, and get away from sport," I was told. I got just far enough away from it to help myself to a hole-in-one at the sixth at Lochranza.

Tom was one of the witnesses, and what he had to say about my golf swing is nobody's business.

From that we got to the more important things of sport, and I find the opinion of the man who has delved into the mysteries of why this or that performer is better than another intensely interesting.

Tom is over 60, but he's still as fit as they. He's got enough to go into the ring with a boxer who wants to "feel out" to train with professional footballers in order to analyse their methods, and capable of talking technicalities to them or to anyone else in everyday language.

That's why I feel I like his book, "Human Kinetics," due out shortly. It will be a winner among sports-folk.

Only two names

If the reader expects it to be full of names, he'll be unlucky. It contains only two, and both of them are goalkeepers—Moscow Dynamo's "Tiger" Khomel, and Scotland's own Harry Kinnear.

Tom told me how, on the morning of the Dynamo-Glasgow match, knowledgeable football folk laughed as they saw Khomel walking away from an appointment with him. "What are you laughing at?" he asked. "Oh, he can't be much of a goalkeeper," was the reply.

"That," said Tom, "is where you are wrong. His movement suggests to me that he'll be the best goalkeeper I've seen since Harry Kinnear—and he's still sure he was right."

When Tom was called in to look at the American footballer's transfer value?

Louise Brough beaten by Beverly Baker

Boston, August 10.

Miss Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, California, staged an upset today as she defeated Miss Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, California, in the quarter-final play of the 23rd annual Essex Country Club's women invitation tennis tournament.

Miss Baker, an ambidextrous player, came from behind with a steady hard-hitting game to beat the second seeded Miss Brough, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

First seeded Mrs. Margaret O. DuPont of Wilmington also moved into the semi-finals with a triumph over Mrs. Helen P. Perez.

Miss Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, defeated Miss Barbara Seifried, 6-3, 6-4.

Blonde Maureen Connolly of San Diego, California, 15-year-old national girl junior singles title, was eliminated by Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, California, 6-4, 6-3.

United Press.

Fancy that coming from a Scot, when folk North of the border usually pump so solidly for Benny Lynch as the man who would have shown the "Mighty Atom" the way to go home.

I asked Tom how he made his assessment, and his answer was something of a surprise.

"I sparred with both of them," he told me, and I doubt whether there's anyone else who can claim such a distinction. How could he judge even then?

"I was able to do things with Lynch that I could never have done with Wilde, in spite of the fact that I was 20 years older when I sparred with the Scot," he said. Well, that's convincing enough.

Indians beat Browns; Phillies cool off Giants

New York, August 10.

Bob Lomon scored his 13th victory tonight, pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns and into second place in the American League race.

The victory put the Indians three and one-half games behind the league-leading Detroit Tigers, who won, and a half game ahead of the third place New York Yankees, who lost.

Lemon gave 11 hits and walked six Browns but managed to pitch out of trouble and weathered one-run rallies in the eighth and ninth innings.

The Indians slinked him to a 4-0 three-inning margin as little Stubby Overmire and Frank Struber stopped Lou Easter, Larry Doby and Al Rosen cold, but saw Joe Gordon knock in two runs and Bob Kennedy smash three hits to lead Cleveland's attack.

In the National League night games the red-hot Philadelphia Phillies cooled off the New York Giants 6-0 in 10 innings with relief star Jim Konstanty coming to the rescue again.

Preacher Roe won his 15th game as the Brooklyn Dodgers beat Johnny Sain and the Boston Braves 4-3, and Ralph Kiner blasted home No. 31 as the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Chicago Cubs 7-4 and broke a 10-game losing streak.

As a result the Dodgers moved past the 100 St. Louis Cardinals into third place while the Braves fell six full games behind the first place Phillies.

In a twilight American League game, double-header, the Washington Senators beat the New York Yankees 4-3, and the Boston Red Sox beat the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3.

Thursday's play

Birmingham, August 10. Warwickshire gained a first innings lead of 123 runs against the West Indies touring team here today. Warwickshire were all out for 284 runs in reply to the West Indies first innings total of 150 runs, and at the close of play the touring team had scored 134 for four wickets in their second innings.

Therefore, with one day's play left, the West Indies, with six wickets to fall, are six runs ahead.

The feature of Warwickshire's first innings was a sixth wicket partnership between A. V. Walton and R. T. Spooner, who put on 123 runs in one hundred minutes.

Walton, batted confidently against all the bowlers, being particularly severe on Valentine and made 89 runs, including 14 fours, in a stay of 133 minutes, while Spooner remained undefeated after three hours with 68 runs.

Warwickshire were 224 runs for six wickets at the lunch interval.

Completes 1,000 runs

Walton's fine innings ended at 210 runs when he was bowled off his foot by Pierre. He hit 16 fours and completed his thousand runs for the season for the first time.

Spooner and Kardur remained together until lunch. After lunch Weekes fielded as substitute for Pierre, who sustained a thigh muscle. Six runs were added before Jones beat Kardur with a ball that came thigh-high quickly.

Valentine also proved troublesome and Spooner was bowled by the spin of the ball that just missed the wicket.

Grove deceived

At 270 runs Grove was deceived by Valentine's slower ball and the bowler claimed Hollies to close the innings at 284 runs with Warwickshire holding a useful lead of 123 runs.

The crowd, estimated at 23,000, which beat yesterday's record, saw the West Indies opening pair, Stollmeyer and Rae, make a sound start in their second innings on a pitch which was not so lively as the previous day.

However, with 63 runs on the board Rae was sent back and three runs later Stollmeyer followed.

Marshall and Trestall were sent in before Worrell, possibly in order to give one or the other a chance to establish his claim to a place in the Test team in case John Goddard is unfit.

Marshall stayed 50 minutes for nine runs while Trestall, the more forceful of the two, was dismissed for 28 runs.

Worrell and Walcott then confidently played out the last 16 minutes without further loss.

GODFREY EVANS ALSO OUT OF FINAL TEST MATCH

London, August 10.

Godfrey Evans, the Kent and England wicket-keeper, will miss the vital fourth and final Test match against the West Indies, commencing at the Oval on Saturday, because of a fractured thumb.

The injury occurred while Evans was batting for Kent against Middlesex at Canterbury today. He was struck on the right hand by a ball from John Warne, the Cambridge University and Middlesex fast medium bowler, and although he continued to bat, he went to hospital immediately his innings ended.

His place in the England team in the fourth Test will be taken by Arthur McIntyre, the Surrey wicketkeeper, who has been showing splendid form recently, both behind the stumps and with the bat.

WATER POLO RESULTS

In a Water Polo League match played at the Victoria Recreation Club yesterday, Victoria beat Hants by five goals to all.

VIC, who were unable to field a team for their match against Chelsea at White, at the Ritz Hotel, will now play Hants.
